Low carbohydrate snack ideas

Information for patients

Everyone has different eating habits. Some of us might eat snacks between meals or at bedtime. Having snacks can be helpful especially when main meals are smaller. However, continuous snacking can lead to higher blood glucose levels and weight gain.

15g carbohydrate snack ideas:

- One portion of fruit such as a medium sized apple, small fun size banana, medium orange, one medium peach, one medium pear, 160g blueberries, three apricots, 80g grapes, one tbsp tinned fruit, 10 strawberries (155g), raisins – one dessert spoon or small snack box (20g).
- Fruit and nut snack packs (20g).
- One handful unsweetened popcorn (27g).
- One plain pancake.
- One slice medium toast with low fat spread/peanut butter.
- Two rice cakes with low fat cream cheese/low fat spread/peanut butter.
- Four mini breadsticks and low-fat cream cheese.
- Two crisp breads with low fat cream cheese and cucumber slices.
- Two oat cakes with low fat spread.
- Light cereal bar (such as Alpen, Special K, one slice of Go Ahead crispy slices, Tesco Healthy Living cereal bar).

10g carbohydrate snack ideas:

- Low fat yoghurt (for example Shape, Irish diet yoghurts, Weight Watchers fromage frais and flavoured yoghurts, 0% fat natural yoghurt, Muller Greek yoghurts), Alpro soya fruit yoghurt.
- Small latte/cappuccino (only if age appropriate).
- Low calorie hot chocolate made with 150ml warm milk and 50ml water.
