Support services in Nottinghamshire

Neurodevelopmental Behaviour Support Service - The Family Service

The Neurodevelopmental Behaviour Support service is based within the Family Service and provides early support to families where there are concerns that a child has neurodevelopmental behaviour support needs which may be indicative of ASD or ADHD. This includes:

- Triage Assessment to identify if referral to Tier/Level 3 Services is required, and a range of evidence-based interventions for families of children and young people displaying behaviours that cause concern or challenge, both pre and post diagnosis.
- Support will be available where there is no formal diagnosis of ASD or ADHD, but where behaviours maybe indicative or characteristic of these conditions, and also for families of children and young people diagnosed with ASD and/or ADHD.

The Neurodevelopmental Behaviour Support Service does not accept self-referrals direct from families. Referrals must be made by a professional involved with your child and/or family. For example, the Healthy Family Team or school setting.
