

INFORMATION FOR PATIENTS

Ear, Nose and Throat Department (ENT)

Joint Voice Clinic

You have been referred to the Joint Voice Clinic (JVC) for assessment as you have a consistent problem with the quality and production of your voice.

What is the Joint Voice Clinic (JVC)?

The JVC is a specialist clinic provided within the ENT service at King's Mill Hospital. The JVC is designed to provide a detailed assessment and examination of your vocal tract and larynx (voice box) to enable a specific diagnosis and appropriate treatment plan to be made.

Who will be present in the JVC?

You will be assessed in the clinic by an ENT consultant and a specialist speech and language therapist.

What will happen at the JVC?

Initially you will be asked to complete questionnaires about how your voice performs and the effects it has on your ability to function, as well as how your throat is feeling.

A detailed case history will be taken by the ENT consultant and the speech and language therapist.

You will be examined using a Nasendoscope. This is a camera which is placed through your nose and then bends to shine a light above your larynx (mild anaesthetic can be applied to the nose if required).

The examination is videoed and involves you making sounds and saying short sentences as well as trialling some voice therapy techniques. This takes up to 10 minutes.

What happens after the examination?

The video will be viewed together, and the following will be discussed:

- The health of the throat and voice box.
- The presence of abnormal muscle movements being used.

A management plan will be determined through joint discussion between you, the ENT consultant and the speech and language therapist.

You will receive a copy of the JVC report.
